Directions (1-5): Rearrange the following five sentences (A), (B), (C), (D) and (E) in the proper sequence to form a meaningful paragraph and then answer the questions given below.

(A) the increase in the taxable income limit for rebate from Rs. 3.50 lakh to Rs. 5 lakh effectively means that many taxpayers with gross incomes of even a little over Rs. 8.35 lakh may not have to pay any tax at all, given the deductions for tax savings investments of Rs. 1.5 lakh, the additional deduction of Rs. 50,000 for National Pension System,

(B) this year's Budget, which was largely expected to be a vote on account, without any changes in the tax law, surprised taxpayers by containing eight amendments, all of which are beneficial to taxpayers.

(C) besides, taxpayers with taxable income in excess of Rs. 5 lakh would not benefit in any manner by the change in this rebate, and would continue to pay the tax as before.

(D) the additional pleasant surprise was that, other than these eight proposals, all mentioned by finance minister Piyush Goyal in his Budget speech, there were no lurking surprises in the fine print of the law proposing the changes.

(E) Rs. 75,000 for mediclaim premium, Rs. 10,000 for bank interest, and standard deduction of Rs. 50,000 for salaried employees. However, though no tax may be payable by such taxpayers, if their income is more than Rs. 2.5 lakh, they would still have to file a return of income.

Directions (16-20): Read the following passage and answer the questions as directed.

Monthly measurement of the unemployment rate is one of the requirements of the Special Data Dissemination Standard (SDDS) of the International Monetary Fund (IMF). The SDDS — India was one of the early signatories —was (A) in 1996 to help countries access the international capital markets by providing adequate economic and financial information publicly. India complies with many requirements of the SDDS, but it has taken an exception with respect to the measurement of unemployment.

The Government of India does not produce any measure of monthly unemployment rate, nor does it have any plans to do so. Official plans to measure unemployment at an annual and quarterly frequency is in a shambles. This does not benefit India's claims to be the fastest growing economy and as the biggest beneficiary of a famed demographic dividend.

The Centre for Monitoring India Economy (CMIE), a private enterprise, (B)..... that fast frequency measures of unemployment can be made and that seeking an exception on SDDS compliance is unnecessary.

Q16. As per the passage, how can the establishment of SDDS help countries access the international capital markets?

- (a) by providing adequate social and financial information publicly
- (b) by providing adequate economic and cultural information publicly
- (c) by providing adequate economic and political information publicly
- (d) by providing adequate economic and financial information publicly
- (e) None of the Above

Directions (21-25): Read the following passage and answer the questions as directed.

Specifically, India's female labour participation rate is very low. Official statistics have always shown that India's female labour participation rate is low and falling. Researchers have shown that this fall is because of rising household incomes that reduce the need for women to join the labour force; increased enrolment in higher education by women which delays their entry into the labour force, and cultural and security factors that keep women away from the labour market in India. Further, it is evident that employers are also biased against hiring women.

The CPHS shows that the situation with respect to women's participation in the labour force is extremely poor —(A) The entire brunt of demonetisation was borne by women. Their labour participation fell sharply while that of men did not.

After the demonetisation jolt came the Goods and Services Tax shock of July 2017 that drove away small enterprises which could not compete in a tax-compliant environment out of business. This caused a substantial loss of jobs. Preliminary estimates suggest that employment shrunk by 11 million in 2018. The brunt of this was again borne largely by women. But men too were also impacted.

Male labour participation rate was 74.5% in 2016. This dropped to 72.4% in 2017 and then to 71.7% in 2018. In contrast, female labour participation was as low as 15.5% in 2016 which dropped to 11.9% in 2017 and then 11% in 2018. Urban female labour participation rates fell faster than rural female participation. In urban India it dropped from 15.2% in 2016 to 10.5% in 2018. The corresponding values for rural women were 15.6% and 11.3%, respectively.
