Solutions

S1. Ans.(c)

Sol. The Renaissance man is someone with a wide area of interests and is an expert in several subjects. "No one thinks it is possible anymore for an individual to grasp, fully, all areas of science and technology", makes option (c) correct. Option (a) is incorrect because one may have in depth knowledge in one area – this is not contradicted by the passage. Option (b) is wrong for the same reason it is the inability of experts to master more than one area is highlighted by the reference to the Renaissance man. For example, Da Vinci was adept at several things (painter, sculptor, architect, stage designer, writer, engineer, astronomer, anatomist, biologist, geologist, physicist, architect, scientist, inventor, mathematician, philosopher, actor, singer, musician, humanist) including painting and is considered a Renaissance man. The reference to Renaissance man is to emphasize the amount of knowledge available in a single area today and how it is impossible for any man to know everything even in one area, hence options (d) and (e) are distracters without merit.

S2. Ans.(c)

Sol. This is a direct question. To get a rating of 7 the person has to have a "perfectly detailed mental blueprint." This does not indicate that the person is yet an "expert." An expert implies training and experience which is not essential in the context, eliminating option (a). The other options are based on certain unwarranted assumptions made by the reader because certain problems are stated about the actual performance of the respondents.

S3. Ans.(d)

Sol. The answer can be found in the second paragraph of the essay. In order to demonstrate this the writer explains how this can be proved by first asking people to rate themselves and then by asking them certain critical diagnostic questions, and then again asking to rate themselves. The discrepancy then becomes obvious. The reason is that people do not want to be modest (reserved) about their ignorance.

S4. Ans.(c)

Sol. A, B and C. "We are good at estimating how well we know simple facts, procedures, and narratives." The statement A is an example of facts. Statement B is an example for procedures. Statement C is an example for narratives. Hence option (c). Statement D related to what is mentioned as "explanatory understanding" in which area our estimates of our knowledge is likely to be wrong.

S5. Ans.(c)

Sol. Paragraphs beginning "Several factors converge to create this illusion of knowledge" and the next three paragraphs give you this answer. Statement C is a generalisation based on the example of the image of the brain. Hence C can contribute to the illusion. D is a distortion of the next paragraph and is not true. The passage states "we often figure out things on the fly", it does not imply that things discovered on the fly contribute to this illusion.

S6. Ans.(b)

Sol. The last sentence of the paragraph implies this. "It would perhaps be better if we recognized the limits our own explanatory ability, but there may be some adaptive value of those limits as well." Option (a) is incorrect because the writer does not consider it mandatory. Option (c) is contrary to the passage—because lack of explanatory depth facilitates our getting more information from others. Option (d) is wrong because the passage does not state or imply this. Option (e) is also not implied in the passage. Option (e) merely states that illusion of knowledge helps us gain information when it is needed. It does not imply the opposite.

S7. Ans.(b)

Sol. Renaissance—the revival of European art and literature under the influence of classical models in the 14th–16th centuries, the culture and style of art and architecture developed during the Renaissance, a revival of or renewed interest in something.

S8. Ans.(b)

Sol. sheepishly—in an embarrassed manner due to shame or a lack of self-confidence.

S9. Ans.(c)

Sol. Hierarchical—of the nature of a hierarchy; arranged in order of rank.

S10. Ans.(b)

Sol. Silver lining - Use the term silver lining when you want to emphasize the hopeful side of a situation that might seem gloomy on the surface. The common expression "every cloud has a silver lining" means that even the worst events or situations have some positive aspect.

S11. Ans.(d)

Sol. The passage states this at the end of the first paragraph. The few rare and exceptional men are those who want to change the life of all members of the society for the better. Their efforts worked against themselves because the people whose life they wanted to change were not capable of understanding their lofty aims. Hence they failed. The educated modern world however provides a more conducive environment for their "demand for radical reconstruction" — hence these men are broadly "revolutionaries." Socialists etc. may belong to this class, but they are subsets.

S12. Ans.(c)

Sol. The answer is stated in the middle of the first paragraph itself: "... failed to interest the very victims of the injustices which they wished to remedy. The more unfortunate sections of the population have been ignorant, apathetic from excess of toil and weariness, timorous through the imminent danger of immediate punishment by the holders of power, and morally unreliable owing to the loss of self-respect resulting from their degradation. To create among such classes any conscious, deliberate effort after general amelioration might have seemed a hopeless task, and indeed in the past it has generally proved so." This makes option (c) correct. Option (d) is ambiguous in the use of the pronoun "they" – it may refer to the rare and exceptional men. Option (b) emphasizes morally unreliable and depravity – too specific. Option (a) is not supported by the passage.

S13. Ans.(b)

Sol. Statements A and B are very easily to be right from the last part of the first paragraph. That only an educated society with the wage earning class enjoying a better standard of living can be made aware of their rights and freedoms. Statement C is also necessary because the first part of the passage talks about the great majority of men passing through life passively; some men being guided by personal ambition; and the few rare and exceptional men demanding for radical reconstruction. These are the sympathetic leaders mentioned in C necessary for changes.

S14. Ans.(a)

Sol. Read the following carefully to get the answer: In regard to Socialism this is evident; but in regard to Anarchism it is only true with some qualification. Anarchism as such has never been a widespread creed; it is only in the modified form of Syndicalism that it has achieved popularity. Anarchism assumes an absence of government and is hence different form socialism. Syndicalism is a modified (limited) form of anarchism – in other words anarchism works at larger levels, and anarchism is limited to organizations (trade unions) and is called syndicalism. Hence anarchism ideally is syndicalism at the level of vast populations. To understand think backwards from, "thus we may regard Syndicalism as the Anarchism of the market-place..."

S15. Ans.(c)

Sol. The writer merely describes how certain political ideals, here Socialism, Anarchism, and Syndicalism, arose from the desire of a few men who, in contrast to the vast majority of the people, demanded radical reconstruction of society, to make the world a better place for everyone. Option (a) is not sustainable as there is hardly any history. Option (b) is not sustainable because the difference is not highlighted. Option (d) is not sustainable because there is no reference to any movements.

Sol. Option C is the most suitable choice.

S30. Ans.(a)

Sol. Options B, C and D can be eliminated logically, as they state that consumers faced negative impacts of recession and still they purchased luxury cars. Option E can be eliminated as 'proven' is not an apt choice and can't be used as consumers never prove recession.

Hence, only Option A provides coherent meaning to the passage.

S31. Ans.(b)

Sol. Option B is the correct choice.

A, D can be eliminated as most can't be preceded by superlative or comparative form of adjectives. C can be eliminated as alleviate means to lessen.

S32. Ans.(e)

Sol. 'Steal a march on' is an idiom means to precede someone who has the same goal; to accomplish something before someone else does. So, the hidden meaning here is Norway has reacted before its fellow nations and is going to perform the necessary action in-order to become carbon-neutral in future.

In Option B 'grew' is the past form of grow, hence incorrect.

D can be eliminated because verb 'ing' form is used only when there are simultaneous actions.

E is correctly expecting the idea.

S33. Ans.(d)

Sol. The sentence means that foreign language affects the students' comprehending abilities and becomes troublesome later in their lives. S37. Ans.(d)

Sol. Option D is the correct choice. Only 'outdated', 'expired' and 'invalid' are applicable in the second blank. Among the three options, only 'action' is suitable in the first blank because of the use of the words 'has been taken' after the blank. So, Option D is the best answer.
